EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The Largest Private Employers in the City of Boston Policy Development and Research Department, BRA/EDIC, June 1997

- ⇒ There are 43 private sector companies within the city of Boston that employ over 1,000 people each.
- ⇒ The four largest industries among these employers, in terms of employment, are: health care, financial services, insurance, and higher education.
- ⇒ The 43 largest private employers in Boston account for nearly 132,000 jobs or about 21% of the total employment in the city.
- ⇒ The health care industry, and hospitals in particular, employ far more people than any other sector in Boston.
- ⇒ With 11,415 employees, Massachusetts General Hospital is Boston's largest private employer.
- ⇒ Two manufacturers also make the list: Gillette and Teradyne.
- ⇒ 40% of the employees at Boston's largest companies are also Boston residents.
- ⇒ 51% of the employees at Boston's largest companies have at least a four year college degree and another 18% have some college education.
- ⇒ Nearly one in four jobs is a part-time position.
- ⇒ The slight tendency for Boston residents to be employed more on a part-time basis when compared to non-residents disappears when companies which hire more partthan full-time workers are removed.

OVERVIEW

F.I.R.E. (finance, insurance and real estate), and higher education.

The Boston Redevelopment Authority/
Economic Development and Industrial

Economic Development and Industrial

Corporation (BRA/EDIC) conducted a survey of Boston's largest employers during the latter half of 1996 and beginning of 1997. The survey sought to identify:

- the largest private sector employers (over 1000 employees),
- the number of employees working at their company sites within the city of Boston,
- the number of those employees residing in Boston, and
- the educational level of these Boston-based employees.

The survey revealed that there are 43 private sector companies that employ over 1,000 employees at sites located in Boston. (See Table 1.) The number of employees ranges from 11,415 employees at Mass.

General Hospital to 1,045 employees at Delta Airlines.

Together, these 43 private employers provide nearly 132,000 full- and part-time jobs or more than one in every five persons working in the private sector in the city of Boston.

The industry sectors with the greatest number of large employers are health care,

A significant number of the jobs at Boston's largest private companies are part-time. Thirty-five of the 43 employers reported both full-time and part-time positions. These employers accounted for a total of 104,198 employees (78% of the total), of which 25,651 – 24.6% or almost one in four -- is part-time. (See Table 2.)

Sixteen of these 35 largest employers report workforces that are more than 25% part-time. A few companies have more part-time than full-time employees. Star Market and Stop & Shop, for example, report more part-time than full-time employees. Other employers with more part-time than full-time positions are the Visiting Nurses Association and the Faulkner Hospital.

(See also the discussion of the relationship between Boston residency and full-or part-time employment later in the report.)

HEALTH CARE

Eleven hospitals tip the scales with over 1,000 employees each. In fact, Massachusetts General Hospital, with 11,415 employees, is the largest private employer in the city. The second largest employer in the city is another hospital, Brigham and Women's, with 8,661 employees. Beth Israel employs over 6,000, while New England Medical Center and Children's Hospital both have nearly 5,000 employees each. Boston Medical Center, St. Elizabeth's Medical Center, Dana Farber, Carney Hospital, and the Faulkner Hospital complete the list of Boston's largest hospitals. Deaconess Hospital, counted as one of the forty-three largest employers, merged with Beth Israel in October of 1996. Together, they would rank as the second largest employer with 9,050 employees. The remaining health care providers (Harvard/Pilgrim Health, Visiting Nurses Association, and Mass. Eye and Ear Infirmary) add almost 5,000 more jobs. As a result, the health care sector is the dominant source of private sector employment providing nearly 55,000 jobs, with the three largest institutions alone providing 48% of the jobs (53% if the Beth Israel and Deaconess are counted as combined.)

F.I.R.E.

The finance, insurance, real estate sector (F.I.R.E.) employs the second largest number of people in the city of Boston. Four banks, four insurance companies, and four financial services companies employ more than 1,000 employees each. FMR Corporation (Fidelity Investments) is Boston's third largest private employer with 8,000 employees. Putnam, Thomson, and Liberty Financial round out the largest financial services companies. BankBoston, with more than 5,400, employs far more people than any other bank in the city. Fleet, State Street, and the Federal Reserve are the next largest, in rank order. Boston's four largest insurance companies employ nearly 13,000 people. Liberty Mutual, the largest, and John Hancock Mutual Life, second largest, account for 9,151 of those jobs. The New England and Blue Cross/Blue Shield add 3,604 more jobs to the total. Together, Boston's largest banks, insurance companies, and other financial institutions employ over 38,000 people.

HIGHER EDUCATION

The only other sector in which the largest private employers generate over 10,000 jobs is Higher Education. Boston University -- 7,410 employees -- and Northeastern University -- 3,186 employees -- are Boston's largest private universities. Of course, the large number of smaller colleges and universities, as well as those located on Boston's periphery, add to the overall impact of the Higher Education sector on Boston's economy. Notably, such important institutions of higher education as Boston College, Harvard, and Tufts are not included even though portions of their campuses are located within the city of Boston.

OTHER LARGE EMPLOYERS

Eight other industry sectors are represented by companies with more than 1,000 employees. Both Airlines and Retail categories have three companies each with over 1,000 employees. The three airlines - American, USAir, and Delta - employ 3,845 people. Retail includes two large grocery stores, Stop & Shop and Star Market which both reported that a large portion of their part-time workers are high school students, and Filene's - the only retail department store to make the largest employer list.

Together these stores employ 6,430 people.

The Utilities and Manufacturing sectors have two companies each with over 1,000 employees, and these industries account for slightly more than 5,050 jobs each. Business Services also has two companies which employ a total of about 2,500 people. The Boston Globe, with over 2,250 employees, is the only newspaper in Boston with more than 1,000 employees. Au Bon Pain is the only food service company on the list and it employs 1,868 people. Stone & Webster is the only engineering company and it lists 1,274 employees.

On average, just over 40% of the employees of the largest private firms are also Boston residents. This percentage ranged from a high of 88% for Stop & Shop to a low of 14% reported by Delta Airlines. Thirty-seven (86%) of the 43 largest employers, accounting for 118,640 jobs (90%) responded to the survey question asking for the number of Boston-based employees who also live in one of Boston's sixteen neighborhoods.

In general, hospitals and other health care institutions have above average resident percentages. Of those reporting resident percentages, Massachusetts General Hospital draws upon Boston residents for 67% of its workers. Given its large size, this translates to 7,681 Boston residents. Thus, Massachusetts General Hospital employs, by far, more city people than any other private employer in the city of Boston.

Paralleling Stop & Shop, Star Market reports that 72% of their employees at Boston locations are also Boston residents. The Visiting Nurses Association, Boston Medical Center, and Blue Cross/Blue Shield (Boston locations) all draw upon Boston residents for over 50% of their employees.

While 41% of Fleet Bank's Boston-based employees live in Boston, all other banks and financial services firms employ a below-average percentage of Boston residents.

RESIDENCY AND FULL-TIME OR PART-TIME EMPLOYMENT

Thirty-two employers provided information on both the employees' residency in Boston and full-or part-time employment. The results (Table 9) show that this sub-population of the largest employers represents 97,173 jobs or 73.2% of the total reported by all 43 companies. (This sub-set of data is quite similar to the complete set of full-time and part-time employment data shown earlier in Table 2, with about one-quarter (25.6%) of these employees working part time.)

Table 9

Nature of Employment in Companies Reporting Boston Residency

	Number of Residents	Number of Non- Residents	Total
Full-Time	28,856	43,759	72,615
Part-Time	11,408	13,150	24,558
Total	40,264	56,909	97,173

There is, however, a slight tendency for Boston residents to be employed on a part-time basis when compared to non-residents. As shown in Table 10, Boston residents constituted 46.5% of the part-time employees in these largest companies, whereas they made up 39.7% of the full-time employees. On the other hand, non-residents made up only 53.5% of the part-time workers but 60.3% of the full-time employees. (See also Figure 2.)

Table 10

Relationship Between Residency and Full-Time or Part-Time Employment

Employment	Residents (% of employment)	Non- Residents (% of employment)	Total
Full-Time	39.7	60.3	100
Part-Time	46.5	53.5	100

The difference can be explained by the large numbers of part-time employees working for the two grocery store chains - Stop & Shop and Star Market, the Visiting Nurses Association, and the Faulkner Hospital, all of which reported more part-time than full-time employees. When these are removed from the data, the tendency for Boston residents to be employed in part-time positions disappears. (See Table 11.) It should also be noted that Mass. Eye and Ear Infirmary and Children's Hospital each employ ten percent more Boston residents than non-residents in full-time positions.

Relationship Between Residency and Full-Time or Part-Time Employment with Selected Companies Removed

Employment	Residents (% of employment)	Non- Residents (% of employment)	Total
Full-Time	39.2	60.8	100
Part-Time	38.7	61.3	100

EDUCATIONAL ATTAINMENT OF LARGEST EMPLOYERS' WORKFORCE

Only 25 (58%) of the 43 largest employers responded to the question concerning the educational levels of their employees in Boston, and nearly all of those responses were estimates. Based upon these responses, on average, 69% of the employees at Boston's largest companies have some level of college education -- 33% have a college degree, 18% have an additional post-graduate, professional, or doctoral degree, and another 18% of the employees have some college experience. Twenty-five percent of the Boston based employees have high school diplomas and only 6% have less than a high school education. (See Table 12 and Figure 3.)

Educational Level of Employees in Boston's Largest Companies

Educational Level	Number of Employees	Percent of Employees
Post-Grad., Prof., Doct. Degree	12,945	17.7%
4 Year College Degree	23,997	32.7%
Less Than 4 Years of College	13,292	18.1%
High School Diploma	18,003	24.6%
Less Than High School	5,073	6.9%

Figure 3
Educational Level of Employees in Boston's Largest Companies

Stop & Shop and Star Market, both with high percentages of employees with less than high school diplomas, have many high school students working part-time. First Security Corp., a provider of on-site security, investigative, and protective services, is the only other company with a significant number of employees who have less than a high school education; 20% of their employees have not completed high school.

Hospitals and universities employ the largest percentage of people with post-graduate, professional or doctoral degrees. Also of note, 70% of State Street Bank's employees and 65% of Coopers & Lybrand's employees have a four-year college degree. On the other hand, 66% of the employees with the Visiting Nurses Association and 55% of the employees at the Federal Reserve Bank have only a high school diploma.

APPENDIX

SURVEY DESIGN AND QUESTIONNAIRE

Drawing upon such resources as previous BRA large employer surveys, Dun and Bradstreet, and the Boston Business Journal, a list of Boston's 80 largest private companies was compiled. Beginning in the summer of 1996. a one page questionnaire was then mailed to these companies believed to have close to, or in excess of, 1,000 Boston-based employees. To assist companies in the sorting and identification of appropriate data, a map of Boston zip code areas and a list of all zip codes for Boston's neighborhoods was included in the mailing. After extensive follow-up by mail, telephone and fax during the fall of 1996 and spring of 1997, 66 responses were received - an 83% return rate. Forty-three of the questionnaires came from companies employing more than 1,000 workers within the city of Boston.

Of the 43 companies with more than 1000 employees:

- 35 employers (81%) responded to the question about full- or part-time employment. These employers accounted for 104,198 employees or 78% of the total 132,735 reported by all 43 companies.
- Thirty-seven employers (86%) responded to the question concerning residency of their employees.
   These firms employed 118,640 people or 90% of the total employment.
- Thirty-two employers (74%) provided information on both the employees' residency in Boston and full- or part-time employment.. This sub-population of the largest employers represents 97,173 jobs or 73% of the total reported by all 43 companies.
- Only 25 (58%) of the 43 largest employers responded to the question concerning the educational levels of their employees in Boston, and nearly all of those responses were estimates.
